

When displaying a slide show in PowerPoint 2007, a pop-up menu appears if you right-click with the mouse. This menu lets you jump between slides, change the pointer type, immediately end the slide show, and other options.

While some appreciate this feature, others might access this menu by accident, causing a displayed presentation to appear less professional. If you wish to disable this pop-up menu:

1. In PowerPoint, click the "Office" button.
2. When the window appears, click the "PowerPoint Options" button in lower right.
3. A dialog box appears. Select "Advanced" in the left pane.
4. In the right pane, underneath "Slide Show", uncheck "Show menu on right mouse click".
5. Click "OK" on the dialog box to close it.
