

Daniel Tamayo is a Translation and Interpreting practitioner and trainer, and he is the owner of GlobalTradu Language Services. He started interpreting insurance matters in 1993; served as a med-legal interpreter for over 12 years, and since 2007 he specializes in conference interpreting, nationally and internationally, in the following areas: Economic development, public policy, education, immigration, public health and environment studies. He interprets regularly at UN summits and conferences on climate and indigenous peoples' issues. Additionally, he serves as an English<->Spanish technical translator and as a Spanish editor and proofreader.

Daniel completed a master's degree in Translation Studies from the Graduate School of Translation, Interpretation, and Language Education at the Middlebury Institute of International Studies at Monterey (MIIS), where he also studied Conference Interpreting and Court Interpreting. He also completed a master's degree in Hispanic Language and Civilization from the University of California Santa Barbara, graduate and undergraduate courses in Economics, and a bachelor's degree in International Management.

He teaches Translation and Interpreting at the University of California at Riverside and at Cal State University, Fullerton. He taught Spanish at Cal State Polytechnic University for 9 years.

He is a member of the Professional Development Committee of the Spanish Division of the American Translators Association (ATA), and a board member and a trainer for the California Healthcare Interpreting Association (CHIA). Daniel regularly presents at various conferences and seminars for T&I organizations and universities in the US and abroad since 2009.