

Daniela Guanipa is an ATA-certified translator and a court-certified interpreter. She has devoted her 22 years of professional life to the art of crafting effective and compelling messages, whether as a translator, editor, or interpreter. She is a founding member of the Spanish Editors Association and a founding member and contributor of ATA's blog The Savvy Newcomer. Daniela is an experienced educator who has taught Spanish at different levels and settings, including for government and law enforcement agencies, and high-level executives. She is a former trainer of the Indiana Court Certification Program, and currently co-teaches a highly successful advanced translation skills course online. She is the founder and owner of Glossa Language Consulting and Translation, Inc.