

A network diagram background consisting of interconnected nodes and lines. The nodes are represented by circles of varying sizes and colors, including blue, grey, and white. The lines are thin and grey, connecting the nodes in a complex, web-like structure. The diagram is positioned in the corners of the slide, with a larger concentration of nodes in the top-left and bottom-right areas.

Course Title: Broadcast Journalism II (Honors)

Course Prerequisites: Refer to Registration Presentation

Course Description:

The content of the course is in three distinct parts but students in the second year of this course will take on leadership roles in:

1. Production- to employ the professional studio and its equipment to create programming.. Various roles include: technical director, sound engineer, cameraperson, prompter, lights, wardrobe, make-up/hair, etc.
2. Editorial- to collect newsworthy information from our community for the daily morning broadcast show called Omnia (Latin for everything). Various editorial roles include: sports, clubs, world news, counseling, teachers, social media, etc.
3. Curricular- lessons and projects that will increase the students ability to tell the compelling stories from our community. Content includes: interview skills, copy creation, camera usage, storyboarding, commercials, editing, etc.

Omnia's mission statement is "to increase student body awareness, morale and school spirit by creating comprehensive, entertaining, and informative content that will be viewed and enjoyed by all stakeholders."

Students entering this course should already have a mastery of the following concepts and possess the following skills:

Photography, lighting, video editing, audio recording, and basic video effects. Additionally, students should understand Character, Conflict, Camera and Continuity and how those apply to storytelling.

Workload expectations for this course:

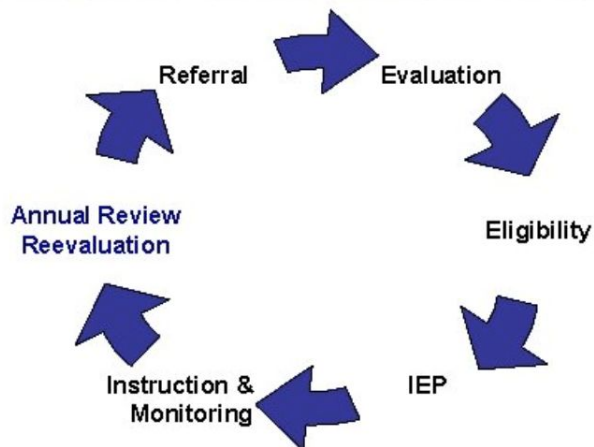

Students will be expected to be highly engaged in class, attentive to editorial issues outside of class, and attend various events outside. Work outside of class varies but rarely exceeds twice per week.

Triennial and Reevaluation

Re-evaluation occurs

- at least every three years, (unless the parent and school personnel agree that it is not necessary). Or
- If a child is not making expected progress and a parent or teacher requests one (unless the specific evaluation requested is less than a year old).
